

Eric Lisle, Chief Executive Officer at Southeast Primary Care Partners, LLC

Eric Lisle is co-founder and chief executive officer at Southeast Primary Care Partners (SPCP), a primary care-focused management services organization dedicated to achieving true value-based care everywhere. With a history of executive leadership roles at some of the country's largest and most influential healthcare organizations, Eric has a finger on the pulse of the industry, and an understanding of what's needed next and how to get there. Under his leadership, SPCP has expanded its footprint across the Southeast, growing to 125 providers and 588 employees, and ending 2022 with over 300,000 patient visits and a total of 18,000 value-based lives.

Eric is a well-known figure in the industry, having spoken at the Medical Association of Georgia, the Pennsylvania Health Care Association, and a number of podcasts and webcasts dedicated to building effective provider networks, bringing high-quality care to high-needs and rural areas, challenges and opportunities for the management service organization field, and more.

Prior to co-founding Southeast Primary Care Partners, Eric was executive vice president of development at Optum, where he implemented strategies to address rising costs and oversaw M&A, strategic partnerships and both ACO and CIN initiatives. Eric was also a chief executive officer of PA Health & Wellness (Centene Corporation). Before joining Centene, he held leadership roles at both Highmark Health, and Humana (Tricare). Eric served his country as a Medical Service Corps Officer in the U.S. Air Force for more than 20 years.
